Portfolio Orchestration Webinar For Private Equity and Investment Firms

Private equity firms are constantly facing economic challenges from prolonged inflation, high interest rates, regulatory fluctuations, geopolitical uncertainty, and potential recession, among other hurdles, such that holding an investment and waiting for it to naturally accrue value is no longer a viable option. Increasingly, investors and their portfolio companies are turning to the proven Enterprise Orchestration operating model, also known as value creation Portfolio Orchestration, to proactively drive improvements and establish a next-gen operating framework for continuous evolution.

Watch: Portfolio Orchestration Webinar For Private Equity and Investment Firms

This webinar is presented by Jay Goldman, New York Times' best-selling author for The Decoded Company, member of the Harvard Business Review Advisory and Forbes Technology Councils, and Co-Founder and CEO of Sensei Labs.

The 30-minute presentation will focus on the mounting value-creation challenges General Partners (GPs) are now facing and discuss why Portfolio Orchestration is quickly emerging as the modern operating model to accelerate value creation, shorten holds, and improve overall PortCo transformation, even in the most challenging economic environments.

Frequently asked questions

What is portfolio orchestration in private equity?

An operating model that integrates the PE firm, its portfolio companies, and the fund on one real-time platform so value creation is driven proactively rather than left to accrue. It is the private equity application of enterprise orchestration: one source of truth for a single portco or the whole portfolio, with data-driven insight into where operational improvements are needed.

Why are private equity firms moving to an orchestration model?

Because holding an investment and waiting for value to accrue no longer works. Prolonged inflation, high interest rates, regulatory shifts, and geopolitical uncertainty have made passive holds untenable, so GPs need an execution framework that accelerates value creation plans and shortens hold periods even in difficult conditions.

What do GPs, LPs, and portfolio companies each gain from portfolio orchestration?

GPs get real-time visibility across portcos and a repeatable execution model; LPs get transparent, data-backed reporting on value creation progress; portfolio companies get a structured framework for transformation instead of ad hoc requests from the sponsor. The webinar walks through how to assess a firm's current state and what it would take to adopt the model.
